To Whom It May Concern:

It is with great pleasure that I write this recommendation letter for the web design and hosting services of CC&A Website Development. Our original website was sorely in need of a major overhaul. I spent several weeks searching for a company that I felt would provide us with a great end product, but more importantly would help my team through the process of designing the site (a process none of us had any experience with).

We met with Steve and Jack Taormino and I immediately felt that not only could they help us design a great site but they were very flexible with our budget concerns. At our first meeting they provided us with a simple 4 step process to help us keep the project on strategy, on track, on budget and on time. Without Steve and Jack, we would have never gotten our website up as quickly and efficiently. We showed them a few sample sites and they steered us along the process. Steve was even able to recreate a logo that we had done 22 years ago and include it on the site.

The entire process was professional and well organized. They met every deadline and were patient and persistent when we missed deadlines to give them the information they needed. The quality of the end product was so much more that we could imagine. Please check it out for yourself (www.nttsurveyors.com).

I can't say enough about the level of service that we received during and after the project. Steve and Jack and the entire team at CC&A made the complicated process of designing and building our website as easy as possible. They are immediately responsive and always understand what it is we need (often times more so than we did ourselves). They truly felt like a part of our company and that is what sets them apart from other web development companies.

I whole heartedly recommend CC&A website development services to any organization. Please feel free to call me with any questions that you may have about our experience with them.

Sincerely,

Dena Hudgins Gallagher
